Women's Minor Ills come from one cause

Chronic constipation is the plague of their lives, but thousands keep healthy with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

WOMEN are so accustomed to finding themselves constipated that they are apt to make matters worse by indifference. Unfortunately many seem to think that it is easier to give the appearance of health with cosmetics, or still a headache with an opiate, than to remove the real cause by taking a good laxative.

The pill habit, of course, is not to be recommended, but any woman can take such a mild laxative as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin with assurance that the dose can gradually be decreased and that there will be no shock or weakening of the system.

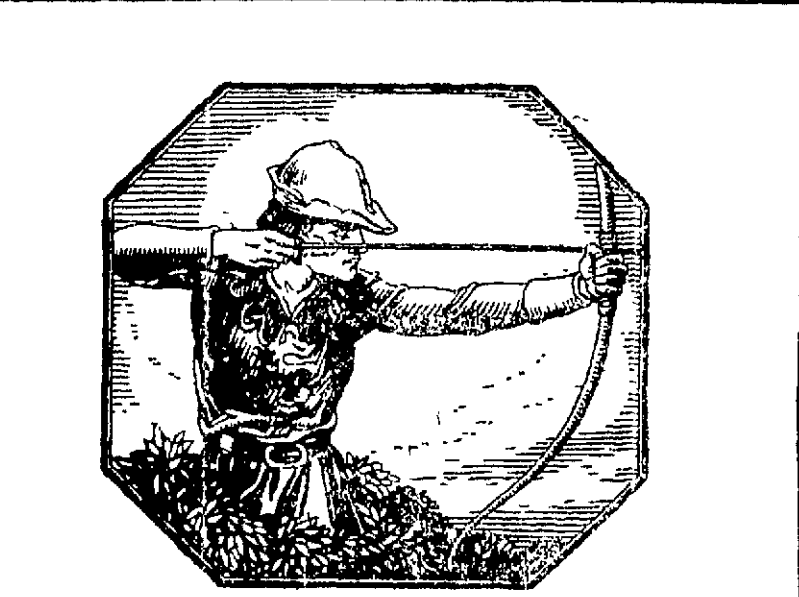

As is generally known, Syrup Pepsin is a pure vegetable compound of Pepsin, a natural digestive, and a pleasant tasting aromatic. A spoonful will clean out the impacted matter and make you feel well by morning.

More than ten million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are sold annually, the largest sale in the world. If you have been in the habit of using strong cathartic pills, salt water or candy cathartics, which contain no real drug called phenolphthalein we especially urge you to try this milder method. You will have a better freer passage and without strain or gripe. A bottle can be had at any drug store and the average cost is less than a cent a dose.

Free Sample Bottle Coupon

There are people who very rightly prefer to try a thing before they buy it. Let them clip this coupon, fill in their name and address to it and send it to the Syrup Pepsin Co., 518 Washington Street, Monksville, Illinois, and a free sample bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will be sent them postpaid by mail. Do not include postage. It is free.

Cokers Coming Back; May Show Better Form Against Braddock; Team Desperate

Boys Want to Close Schedule By Taking Over Last Two Contests.

D. T. ON THANKSGIVING

Feeling that the team is at last coming back, the High School student body is going to throw its whole force of moral support behind the club on Saturday to encourage the boys to come across with their first clean cut victory.

Despite the fact that many believed the team should have won decisively from Indiana because of the numerous opportunities for scoring the boys came clean with a tie and now are out to draw their first blood this year.

Braddock has a good team better than is usual in that school and it will keep the Cokers stepping. Nevertheless it is believed the contest will put the team in the fight for the championship trophy on Thanksgiving.

The student body is preparing some special stunts for Thanksgiving and will practice a few of them Saturday. The Rotary boys and girls will carry out their usual plan of lining out the stunts. Only this time, and the one on Thanksgiving, will the boys print out and demand the Coker loyalty every through to the last of the schedule. The community has asked the joint where it is to come to in ending all others by giving it support to a line, so that they can do so to a winner.

DUNBAR TWP. MUST BEAT COKERS' PASS TO WIN, NOV. 27

Dunbar Township has the ability to beat up Connellsville's Cokers and only at risk is up to the team, which is the main challenge on the two blood rivals of Thanksgiving Day at Connettsville. The Cokers are not on a game to it, but their best ground gain is provided to be a social attack. Very few teams have been able to cope with the Cokers when the Cokers are in form and it will be only by fast and excellent playing that the Dunbar team can destroy it. Without the actual attack the Cokers seem hopeless.

With the game day near, the Red and Black contingent is still hoping that one or two of the five crissles may be able to get into the fray. Although badly clipped in play, the team is not so in spirit. The outfit is working out each evening with a determination to topple the Cokers. Dunbar's goal is to have a real job confronting them. With six regulars to form the nucleus for the final game of the year, the boys are out to 'dig up' six or seven out of the second and third string divisions to replace the injured.

A real crowd will be seen on the field to root for both teams. The officials are looking forward to a gathering of 10,000 to cheer for their favorite team.

CARNEGIE TECH IS PREPARING TO MEET MARINES SATURDAY

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 18.—Carnegie Tech is preparing to meet the Marines on Saturday. The game is scheduled for 2 o'clock at Forbes Field. A crowd of 10,000 is expected to be in attendance.

Carnegie Tech is a hard team. The game is being held at up to the team's last week and the entire squad is in top form. It is so that by the time the game is over the team will be in a position to play the game. The game is being held at up to the team's last week and the entire squad is in top form. Only one game remains on the schedule after the game with the Marines on Saturday. The game is being held at up to the team's last week and the entire squad is in top form. It is so that by the time the game is over the team will be in a position to play the game.

JEANNETTE NOW DOES OWN-PROTESTING; IS AGAINST NORWIN WIN

Jeannette High School at first atacked for its alleged use of ineligible players to make a football team that would contend for scholastic championship and the Syracuse Cup now comes back with some protests of its own and tactics of schools which are not out to win games by any means are likely to be disposed of.

Jeannette is protesting the victory of Norwin High won on November 1 at Jeannette. It is charged the Norwin school used two players who were in the 1933 season.

High School football seems to be in for a good cleaning up. After Jeannette played here it was intimated some ineligible players were in the line-up. A letter from the school authorities to The Courier following the appearance of such an article emphatically denied its team members were over age. Yet following New Castle's protest of the Jeannette victory it was admitted the latter's captain was ineligible because of age.

All these things as far as it goes a cleaning up. It is appalling High School football, especially in communities like Connettsville. No man on the Coker team is ineligible and the rules are closely observed. One man put in that the sooner the schools observing the rules demand that other institutions do the same the better off the sport will be. Other wise schools like the one here will be forced to play a different kind of schedule.

ROTARY BOYS PLAN ROYAL GOOD TIME FOR COKER SQUAD

The Rotary boys are planning a royal good time for the High School football squad which will go to Wintbury on Thursday to witness the championship contest for teams in Class B. The whole outfit will be guests of Wintbury College and the trip is being provided by the Rotary members.

The contingent will leave at 12:30 o'clock. Two more cars are needed at 12:30 to take the boys to the game. It will be a good dinner before returning. The boys are cautioned to take water and overcoats whether it rains or not, to protect them from exposure.

MOUNT PLEASANT MAY HAVE HOLIDAY FOR FRIDAY GAME

Great Interest in Annual Football Classic With Hurst High School.

OTHER NEWS OF THE DAY

Special to The Courier.
MOUNT PLEASANT, Nov. 18.—The one big day for the Hurst High and Mount Pleasant High School comes on Friday when the two schools crash in their annual football game. For years Hurst's High has defeated Mount Pleasant, but this year the borough school has a team that is showing class. Hurst's coach expects such easy sailing. Every support is being flung to Hurst's by the Mount Pleasant township people. Automobiles carry streamers, "Beat Mount Pleasant." Business men in Mount Pleasant have turned their support to the borough team. In their places of business are streamers, "Beat Hurst's." A movement is on foot to have the business places in town close for the game and turn out en masse.

A special trolley car is chartered each year. Last year two cars were secured for the occasion. It was not enough to accommodate the rooters. It will likely be decided today whether a half holiday shall be declared.

Boodleggers Fined.
After two men, W. Bell and J. Miller, had been busy on Diamond street selling moonshine and bootlegging, a complaint was made to Burgess John L. Shields that these men, with their speakeasy about the bootlegging traffic, were nuisances. Burgess, Shields asked his officers to abate the nuisance. The two were brought before him and fined $50 and costs and $100 and costs.

Car Turns Over.
On Saturday at Mr. Farnstone of Fort street and C. Prior of Eagle street, who had been hunting up in the "ridge," were coming down the mountain in Farnstone's car there was a blowout on a front tire and the car turned over. Prior escaped unharmed. Farnstone was badly bruised and injured his neck.

Sunday School Rally.
The superintendents and pastors of the Mount Pleasant Sunday school district will hold a meeting on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at the United Presbyterian Church. B. E. Strickler of Latrobe and M. A. King of Main street will be the speakers.

Departments Entertained.
On Sunday morning after the service at the First Brethren Church, Mrs. J. W. Bennett, superintendent of the home department of the Sunday school, entertained the members of the home department and the cradle roll at the church. A special effort was made to get the people out and over 100 were present. The home department of this church stands eighth in the state. There was special music which was served. The principal speakers were George King, Rev. Crawford and Mrs. Bennett.

Thanks to Rev. Harlan, a commendation was received last

Equalization, Not Increase of Taxes, Commissioners' Plan

Fayette county commissioners, in a statement issued Monday took cognizance of reports which apparently have created a general misunderstanding throughout the county regarding the triennial assessment now in progress.

"It is not the policy of the commissioners," it was stated, "to increase taxation in the county. It is the policy of the commissioners to equalize the valuation of property and this policy will be carried out."

Some time ago, the county commissioners, called a conference of all assessors of the county, the township assessors being the first to convene, and on a later date the city assessors. The attitude of the commissioners was explained in detail and the law regarding valuation carefully presented by the solicitor. The law provides that the valuation of property must be made at actual value.

These conferences, the commissioners said, were of great importance but possibly have brought about considerable misunderstanding in the popular conception of the action of the commissioners. The statement said:

"It is not the policy of the commissioners to increase taxes. It is the policy of the commissioners to equalize the valuation of property and this policy will be carried out in the triennial assessment now in progress."

"The law provides that property shall be valued at its actual worth. This has not been done in Fayette county. Some properties, therefore, have been assessed at a mere fraction of a conservative estimate of actual value, while properties adjacent thereto have been assessed several times as much proportionately. Other properties have not been assessed at all. This situation of affairs has been demonstrated very forcefully in appeals to the commissioners and in records of property transfers on file at the court house. It is eminently unfair to have such inequalities in valuation. It is in violation of the law relating to assessments. It is a burden on other taxpayers."

"The commissioners believe that a fairly conservative estimate of the value should be placed upon property but that the law should be carried out by the assessor in making such assessments. The equalization of assessments, as demanded by the county commissioners will work no hardships. It will bring about fairness; it will bring about an equitable distribution of the matter of taxation; it will not penalize the one property owner and favor his neighbor."

"Generally speaking, the commissioners believe that the assessors of the county are carrying out the desires of the commissioners and the regulations of the law in their valuations. We believe that the citizens of the county will give us unqualified support in this matter. Such a policy will not increase taxes; in fact it will make possible, probably, reductions through bringing up to a fair margin the low valuations in effect upon many properties in the county."

"The commissioners have adopted this policy this year after serious study of the financial and taxation problems of the county. The assessments must be made fair and equitable as the law provides. The board of commissioners proposes, so we see that this is done. We believe the assessors will do it. If they are negligent in the matter, the commissioners propose to equalize the assessments, sitting as a board of revision and appeal."

Oysters Sold on Boughs

The traveler in the West Indies has the opportunity of viewing the novel sight of gathering oysters from trees. Around the harbors and lagoons the boughs grow down to the water's edge. Their branches droop until a part of them is submerged. Oysters will cling to any surface in the water to which they can fasten themselves, and as there are few shelves or stones along the shores the boughs attach themselves to the branches. When the natives go oyster gathering they lean over the side of the boat, find a branch to which oysters are clinging, and cut it off, and the bivalves are sold on the tree.

The Paramount

"I AM THE MAN" with Lionel Barrymore appearing in the stellar role provides splendid entertainment today at the Paramount.

The appeal of this picture is based almost entirely on the tenderness of the dramatic situations and the excellent work of Mr. Barrymore, for while it affords him fine opportunity, his motives and methods are not such as appeal and there is no disappointment when he meets his fate and the woman in the case is reunited with the man who gave up to wed him.

Melodramatic angles have been introduced into the plot and the story is not always entirely plausible and some of the situations are a bit confusing, however, overshadowing all this is the really strong dramatic situations which due to the ability of Mr. Barrymore are unusually effective and realistic.

It is a picture that holds you in a grip at all times and is filled with the conflict of emotions that makes for strong drama. Mr. Barrymore's portrayal is an excellent one and his acting fascinates.

Wednesday and Thursday The Paramount will be shown.

If Its In a Can Its Fresh

This slogan of the canning industry tells one of the great advantages of canned foods. It means that from all over the country, and even foreign lands, the many products of the orchards and fields have been taken when at their best quality and flavor and made available in handy form for use at any time in the year. Many of these fruits and vegetables when marketed in another way have not reached their best stage of maturity.

Special machinery takes care of every process of canning from the time the raw product enters until it is packed for shipment. Cooking is done in the can which sterilizes the contents and makes it the safest food that can come to your table.

Our stores specialize in high quality canned fruits, vegetables, and meats. The very best brands known in the canning industry are on our shelves. Whether you buy one can or a dozen cans you are assured of getting better quality and value than is usual elsewhere.

The BLUE CIRCLE

BY Elizabeth Jordan

COPYRIGHT BY THE CENTURY CO.

"Yes, sir." This was a difficult young man—although an extremely good-looking one. Campbell lost the details of line and color that would have charmed women. What he took in, with an unconscious wish of envy, was the chap's splendid physique. Six feet at least, he told himself, and superbly made. The fellow was young, too, probably not much more than thirty, and, despite his odd lack of response, obviously a thoroughbred. David Campbell liked thoroughbreds, being a thoroughbred himself. Renshaw's amber gaze had fixed itself on a door behind the host, but not more than eight feet away. He was trying to look his will to the look before him; but again it slid, and, as he looked, his ears caught a sound that gave him a legitimate excuse for delay. The sound was like the rustle of still linen garments. Some one was on the other side of the door. His attention caught and held, he waited, expecting to see the door open. Campbell, bending not a hair of his lip. This was a difficult fellow!

"I am ready to listen to your proposition," he said, more earnestly than he had yet spoken.

"Thank you," Renshaw replied almost absently, his eyes, with a quickened expression, still on the door he was facing. "But what I have to say is confidential. If you will permit me—"

He was on his feet as he spoke, and in three strides had reached the door and opened it. As he did so he experienced a sense of elation. The door led into a side corridor, wide and empty. No one was there, though it was possible that he had caught the flutter of a white garment disappearing around a corner. He returned to his chair, looking and feeling rather sheepish. His head was bending forward, with a slight nod, as he spoke.

"I am ready to listen to your proposition," he said, more earnestly than he had yet spoken.

"Thank you," Renshaw replied almost absently, his eyes, with a quickened expression, still on the door he was facing. "But what I have to say is confidential. If you will permit me—"

He was on his feet as he spoke, and in three strides had reached the door and opened it. As he did so he experienced a sense of elation. The door led into a side corridor, wide and empty. No one was there, though it was possible that he had caught the flutter of a white garment disappearing around a corner. He returned to his chair, looking and feeling rather sheepish. His head was bending forward, with a slight nod, as he spoke.

"I wish you would," Campbell said, almost truthfully.

"Mr. Campbell, I don't expect you to take in the thing all at once, but the facts are these," Renshaw had begun almost glibly, because he had rehearsed his opening speech. Now he stopped, as if uncertain how to proceed.

"Yes," prompted his hearer. Renshaw drew a deep breath.

"Two years ago," he said, "I had an unusual experience—a terrible shock. I will not trouble you with the details; in fact, I could not discuss them. The result is what I am talking about. The experience knocked me out completely for a year. The second year I was able to crawl around, in leading strings, as it were. Now I am well, or almost well—but there is still one thing I can't face. Stanley tells me it's my last obsession, and that it will pass as soon as I get into a normal way of living. However that may be, it has got me now."

He brought out the last words between set teeth.

"What is it?" Campbell asked the question very gently.

"A fear of the responsibility for my own life and self-support. A fear that amounts to a nightmare."

"What? I beg your pardon, but I am never quite sure I am hearing things correctly," the old man interrupted.

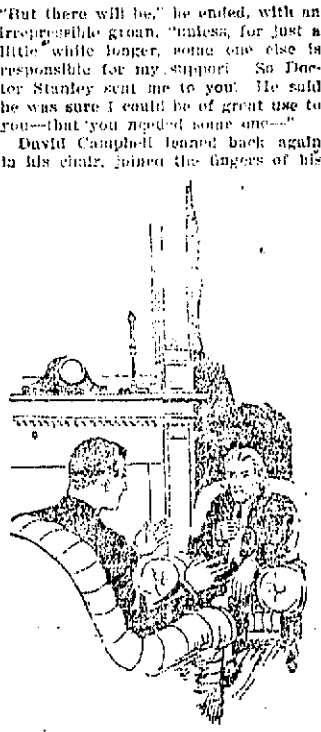

"A horror of the responsibility for my self-support," Renshaw almost fiercely repeated. "I can't endure it. If I have to face it in the half-baked state I am in now, I shall never get well. I know that. If, on the other hand, some one else will be responsible for me a year longer, I am beginning to believe that, with the start I've got, I can be cured. But I've got to be owned and supported by another. I've got to be a handman. I've got to be an irresponsible and dependent as a slave, doing as I'm told and absolutely assured of a living."

David Campbell shook his head. He was still puzzled, but he felt he was beginning to understand. The poor chap needed humor.

"My dear fellow," he began soothingly, "surely there are some things where you can have every cure."

"I've been in them! I have had every cure. That's just the point. I am ready for the next act. The doctors have turned me out. They say I am well, but I don't know it. They say I will never know as long as I remain in institutions. I must live a normal life. I must have work. And I can work."

"I can work like a steam-engine if you put me at it. They all want that. And they're right, intelligent work, too. There's nothing the matter with my brain. Mr. Campbell, don't laugh at that. There's never been a head, even when things were at their worst. I've dropped my head into his hands."

"Have Come Here to Ask You to Buy Me!"

thin hands together, and looked past them into the fire.

"Useful? Yes, perhaps," he murmured, "if you had merely come to me for a situation. But this proposition—it's all very unsettling." He broke off. "Why wouldn't it do to accept a situation on salary?" he asked abruptly.

"Because if I did that I should live in terror of losing my job. No; I've got to fix things in another way. I've got to find a man who will take me on in such a binding fashion that he simply can't get rid of me."

"Stanley!" Campbell started into the flames. The caller watched him.

"What can you do?" the old man asked at last.

"Anything!" The word came from the caller's lips like a bullet.

"Stanley!" Campbell said. "Anything is nothing," he pointed out with sudden authority. "What can you do, really, that is worth a salary?"

The young man flushed.

"I can keep accounts," he said dogmatically. "I can act as secretary and general utility man, and guard your health. That's what Stanley wanted me to do! He recommended to me, 'Look after your health and see that you look after yourself.' He said there were conditions just at present that were rather trying to you. He thought there ought to be a younger man here with you."

Campbell nodded. For the first time, he was impressed as well as interested. Staring at Renshaw's proposition had been, there must be something in it worth considering, or Stanley would not have advocated it in the strong letter he had written. Also, the reference to his health appealed to him.

"If it were merely a matter of engaging your services," he murmured disinterestedly.

"The other interrupted him.

"It's not that," he pointed out. "I could not consider for a moment the mere offer of a situation. Please remember the vital detail that I am asking you to buy me. For the next year I want to be your property as absolutely as if I were a bought slave. Also, try to remember that my obsession does not impair my ability in any way. Doctor Stanley guarantees that. I can be very useful to you if I am certain of my future for a year—if, in a phrase, my future is off my mind."

Buick Continues its Leadership

For the seventh consecutive year Buick has first choice of space at the National Automobile Shows. This distinction is awarded annually by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce to the manufacturer showing the largest volume of business for the preceding twelve months.

In winning and in maintaining this enviable position year after year, Buick has conclusively shown that the true value of an automobile is reflected in the consistency with which the public buys it.

Since the introduction of the 1935 Buick models, public patronage has increased to an even greater degree—

A tribute to the Buick engineering skill and manufacturing ability that have provided newer and better Buick cars without departing in any way from the fundamentals of power, economy and dependability for which all Buicks have been famous.
